

Telecommunications engineer from the University of Cantabria, he has been working at Indra since 2005. He began his career in the Air Traffic Division (ATM) until 2020, playing different roles in various national and European projects to modernize the current air traffic control systems. He currently belongs to Indra's Defense and Security division and is in charge of the anti-drone systems business line (C-UAS).